

ABSTRACT

Systems and methods for communicating exerciser-related messages and/or workouts are disclosed in which, for example, records of exercise activities for the exercisers are stored. Messages relating to one or more of the exercisers are generated based on their records of exercise activities and the messages are communicated over a communication network.